

These new rules that are proposed are, not sound like but ARE, special industry perks that should not happen.

We, the public-the voters-of this country do not need conglomerates in charge of our news and worldwide input. We need, and want diversity. I do not agree with any of the new proposals.

After watching many different 'views' of a single interview with the FCC chairman, it became very evident to me that he was not having a public address to inform the public of upcoming changes, but instead, was led to the podium in an attempt to soothe my outrage that such inept and special interest activities were going on. The old adage of 'You can fool some of the people some of the time' was quite appropo for his q and a session.

If the FCC continues in such leaderless ways, and unproductive sessions, perhaps we should look at totally re-vamping the FCC in total.

One law that should definitely be in place AND ENFORCED, is a public showing of foreign owned interests, especially in our communications sectors. A dual citizenship should be construed as foreign ownership.

It is getting scary folks. We need to let the people actually run this country again.
